Mokena Couple Awarded $1,637 Damages By Court

Mr. and Mrs. C. Stokes Nebeker, Mokena, were awarded $1,637.37 by a Circuit court jury before Judge Roscoe C. South last Wednesday, for injuries and damages suffered in an automobile accident.

The suit was against Harold Balaz, also of Mokena, for damages arising out of the crash between their automobiles on October 5 last year at First street and Neithamer road, Mokena.

Mrs. Nebeker was given $1,500 for injuries and her husband received $137.37 for the repair of his car.

Attorneys Ray Faulkner and Matthew Stefanich represented the plaintiffs and Attorney Melville A. Gray appeared for the defendant.

IVAN R. RHODES CAPABLE CANDIDATE FOR TREASURER

If you should ask "what's the matter with the government", why all the chaos, most people would answer, "it's your politics." Elect competent men to responsible jobs; see that they know their books and then that they are honest and courteous. The voter can do a lot toward shaping up a reliable and competent government, by just voting right on primary or election day. Of course you say there is a lot of speculation and that is more or less true, if the person seeking the office is unknown.

The voters in Will County are playing safe in placing Ivan R. Rhodes at the head of their finances and the legal distribution of them because he "knows his books". He knows the books that show the status quo of every taxpayer in the county because for many years he has helped to make these books. He knows law books which define how the public funds passing through the treasury office shall be handled, because he has studied these laws and interpreted them. He also knows that if the laws are followed there can be no difficulties connected with handling

Ivan R. Rhodes, candidate for the Republican nomination for County Treasurer of Will County, was born in Plainfield, Will County, Illinois, on December 29, 1877 where he was reared and spent his school days. He graduated from the Plainfield High School in 1895 after which he taught school for one term in the Royce school in DuPage township. In Sept. 1904 he was united in marriage with Mabel Potter of Joliet and they now have one daughter, Mrs. Eileen M. McCulley of Peconia, Ill. For a period of 12 years he was employed by the late William Upton of Plainfield in the Fancy Grocery and Ice Cream and Ice business which position he held until Dec. 5, 1910 when he assumed the position of Chief Tax Deputy in the office of the late Edw. G. Young, County Clerk of Will County, which position he held until Sept. 21, '21, when he was called to the service of the State of Illinois in the Division of the Illinois State Grain Inspection at Chicago as Chief Clerk and Auditor, which position he filled with distinction and he was most highly recommended by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture for his efficiency.

During his service from 1910 to 1921 as Chief Deputy in the County Clerk's office he distinguished himself to such extent that he was recognized throughout the State of Illinois as authority on Revenue Laws and he was called upon on numerous occasions to assist the solving of tax problems in other counties of the State and he has been so considered ever since for he was consulted many times on tax matters long after he left the County Clerk's office in 1921.

In Dec. 1938 Mr. Rhodes was again appointed by the present County Clerk, Joseph H. Hartley, to assume the position of Chief Deputy in the County Clerk's office and in charge of the tax work, which position he has filled with credit and is now so filling. As to his present record in the County Clerk's office the public in general realize his ability and conscientiousness in serving them.

The office of County Treasurer is most important as the County Treasurer is Ex-Officio County Collector and the most intricate duty of the office is the proper distribution of the taxes collected for the various taxing bodies of the County and it seems most reasonable that one who has spread the taxes on the tax books for a period of years in accordance with the funds required and legally adjusted should be most capable of making the proper distribution where of.

EASTER

In quiet country churches, in tall cathedrals with stained glass windows, the people kneel to pray. It might be any other Easter in America. Easter lilies in the windows. the Easter Parade taking place as usual on Main Street, U.

S.A. even the children hunting for Easter eggs on the lawn.

But this is Easter, 1942. And to Americans, seventeen weeks at war the day has new meaning. Today they pray for Victory, for the triumph of Goodness over the forces of Evil and Oppression. And their prayers will be answered. Make no mistake about that. For that is the promise of Easter, just as it was 1942 years ago.

There will be other Sundays when the world is free, when kindness and love prevail even in the lands that today have forgotten Easter. That is the kind of dawn we may expect. the kind of Easter we can hope for in America.

Sugar Rationing Board Asks For Public Co-operation

The editor of the News Bulletin is in receipt of the following letter from Frank M. Bray, Will County Rationing director, relative to the sugar rationing:

In the absence of information we have hesitated to bother you with wild guesses as to the method for registration for sugar rationing. We now are receiving some instructions as to the routine and wish to advise you with the request that you assist your readers and the teachers, who as a patriotic duty will supervise this registration.

The public will register at the primary school in their district on May 4, 5, 6, 7. One person may register for all of the family unit but a card will be filled out for each member.

One set of questions we fear will cause delay if not widely publicized, is the question of height, weight, color of eyes, color of hair, age and sex of each person for whom registration is made.

May we ask you to advise your readers to go to the school with this data preferably in writing, thus the person registering and the teacher will not lose any time.

R. J. BARR HAS ACCOMPLISHED MUCH FOR HIS DISTRICT

It seems that someone has raised the question as to equitable representation between Will and DuPage Counties. This of course is not an issue but if it were there would be nothing about it over which to raise a controversy. DuPage county has two members of the lower house of the legislature from the 41st district and Will has one. Will has the senator and DuPage has the congressman. Looks like a pretty even break if that was really an issue. It might be germane to add to the caption of this article, "The State of Illinois also needs Senator Barr."

Indeed the Chicago Sun says, in a clever little article: "When Dick Barr Talks it becomes law."

In Joliet they talked track elevation for a quarter of a century, then they elected Dick Barr Mayor and he secured it and a union depot that has been the pride of the city ever since and will be for generations.

Electing a man as your State Senator from Will and DuPage Counties means more than a mere political potentiality. If you will look around you, you will see quite readily how governments have crumbled is largely from within. Our good people, through no particular fault of their own, do not "look well to their ballot." They are carried away on some well-phrased generality or theory. Theory has nothing to do with a government. Government is a business and if you desire to assist in keeping it together and functioning for the best interests of those who own it and pay for running it you have a responsibility at the ballot.

Senator Richard J. Barr knows government. He knows Illinois government because he helped make it. He has the intellectual equipment and hard earned experience that money could not buy. After all and aside from a little personal feeling about a candidate, what voters most want is a man who can manage the job. This sort of representative, who is courteous and approachable, will be the best manager to hire. Very many of the laws you are living under, as state laws, were drawn and piloted through the long and tedious process of your rather unwieldy legislature by Senator Barr, including Commission form of government, workman's compensation act; the farmer's cattle indemnity act; the teachers pension act and many others and more were acquiesced in by him, after much study. Critical times are ahead. Similar to the period of 1917-18, when Senator Barr was working hand in hand with Gov. Frank O. Lowden to see that Illinois laws and law enforcement was such as to help our people to give their full measure of devotion to our country. Now he knows better than he did then how to approach all the intricate questions that are going to arise and the most speedy and economical way to handle laws such as needed to curb sabotage and other forms of out-lawry that arise in times of war.

Auto Stolen In Orland Park Found In St. Louis

Howard Spiess was quite surprised last Wednesday when two detectives from Chicago told him that his automobile which had been stolen in Orland Park last Sunday morning while parked in front of the home of his mother in law, Mrs. Joseph Creer, had been located in St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. Spiess went to St. Louis and contacted the St. Louis police and recovered his car. According to the story told him by the police, the car had been run into a vacant lot and left with the lights burning. This attracted the attention of a woman residing near the vacant lot. She notified the police who later discovered the license number and they in turn notified the stolen car division of the Chicago Detective bureau.

The car was only slightly damaged but nothing had been removed from it.

The only damage was a burned out generator and a dented fender. The car had been entered by forcing a car door lock.

Portions of sandwiches and cigarette butts were found in the car. It is presumed that some soldiers on furlough had overstayed their time and took the car to get back to their camp on time. The speedometer showed the car had been driven 632 miles from Orland Park.

MacArthur's Australian Campaign Heightens Spirit of All America

General Douglas MacArthur

A fighting General for fighting mad people is he . . .

NOW you are going to see some real fighting. That is what thousands of persons said, some of whom might have said it to you, when word was flashed from Australia that General Douglas MacArthur was down there to assume the supreme United Nations command in that region.

Ever since the war in the Pacific region began, the story of the ground warfare has been continually, and dishearteningly the same but with one exception.

Newspaper and radio accounts have related of continual retreats and, finally, surrenders by the Allied armies. But the brilliant exception to all this defensive warfare is and was the activity of General MacArthur, his aides, and his native and American troops fighting on the Bataan peninsula.

Not only did MacArthur stop the Japs—and thereby causing the commander, Gen. Masaharu Homma, to commit hara kiri—but he also put through two brilliant, strategic offensives which prevented further enemy advances at the time.

Reason for Australians' Respect.

Such immediate background of this brilliant general, this Number One officer of the United Nations, was the cause for the increasing clamor of the Australians to have MacArthur come down there and help them, with American, British, Australian, and native soldiers, resist the Japs in the last Pacific region stand. So, after receiving orders on Washington's birthday from the President to go to Australia, MacArthur made plans with his successor, Maj. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, a brilliant tactician, for further defense at Bataan.

'Mac's the Man.'

When a "roving reporter" for one of the outstanding Midwest newspapers went out to interview pedestrians as to how they felt about the new shakeup in military control in the Pacific region whereby General MacArthur was given complete military control, the consensus of opinion was, "Mac's the Man."

One fellow said that it was the best news he heard since the U. S. entered the war. A housewife said

Since General MacArthur has taken his new command in Australia to stop, and then push back, the Japanese drive, Maj. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright (left), shown talking with Gen. MacArthur, has been appointed to the command of the forces that outfought, despite 20 to 1 odds, the Jap forces on the Bataan peninsula in the Philippine Islands.

Like Father, Like Son

General Douglas MacArthur, and his deceased father, Lieut. Gen. Arthur MacArthur, experienced military lives exceedingly interesting because of their striking similarity as available information proves. Lieut. Gen. Arthur MacArthur, like his son, Douglas, was advanced over the heads of many older officers to more important posts.

Both father and son, Arthur and Douglas MacArthur, showed great strategic talent. One of the father's Civil War tactics of battle eventually became a war department standard officer examination. The son's strategy in the Philippines is well known to all newspaper readers, who have been following his brilliant leadership.

Future General??

Little four-year-old Arthur MacArthur, son of General and Mrs. MacArthur, is starting early in a possible war career. Besides having a famous general as a father, Arthur's grandfather, a Civil war veteran after whom he is named, commanded a Manila brigade in 1898 when U. S. forces captured that city.

When war broke out in the Philippines little Arthur and his mother, the former Miss Jean Faircloth of Murfreesboro, Tenn., were reported safe on the island. The next word that came through as to their whereabouts was when their arrival in Australia with the general and his staff was announced.

mission in 1905-'06. On three different occasions he saw extended army service in the Philippines. In 1935 he went to Manila as the commonwealth's president, Manuel Quezon's military adviser.

That his advisory capacity to President Quezon was of a successful nature is now seen in the successful manner in which American troops, Philippine scout professionals, and Filipino reservists, under his command, fought.

So, at the age of 50, after many years of active service, it looked as though General MacArthur's military life was at an end. It seemed that he was then destined for obscurity after being chief of staff for five years. But, it has often been stated, that it is the seemingly little incidents in a person's life which eventually develop into significant, extremely important matters. What would have happened had MacArthur, upon being "retired," not been sent to the Philippines to shape up a military force there is impossible to say.

Once again, MacArthur's life is showing that fact is oftentimes more interesting than fiction. Here, in MacArthur, you see a story book soldier, cool, even tempered, poised, admired by his staff and men, preparing to do a titanic job despite heavy odds against it.

Mrs. Douglas MacArthur
It is now up to her husband . . .

Even the general's air-flight of 2,000 miles to Australia had a touch of the dramatic to it. For the zone over which he and his officers and aides flew in two planes, has been conceded as being the "hot spot" of the southwest Pacific. This is the zone where both enemy and Allied planes are continually on the alert. Fighters, bombers, and interceptors, always ready for battle. When you look at a map and see the territory you will fully realize that MacArthur has not lost any of his boldness. It is such daring, skill, and calm that has put all the confidence of the Allied nations' people directly on his shoulders.

The Yanks, and Aussies, being what they are in temperament, and disposition as to being ready for a fight at all times, now have a man as their leader they know will not fail them.

Congressmen Behind Him, Too.

That this attitude even goes for officials and congressmen in the nation's capital is noted in the comment of various congressmen on the day that MacArthur's safe arrival was announced in a special official war department communique. Sen. Millard E. Tydings, (D., Md.) said that Australia now has real leadership . . . that he was very happy to know that MacArthur was down there where a man such as he is needed.

Rep. Joseph J. Mansfield, (D., Texas) put in a comment which all Americans fully understand. He said that MacArthur is sure going to "raise hell" with the Japs providing we can keep him supplied with a continuous line of supplies and men.

House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin (R., Mass.), said he was happy to hear of the famous soldier's appointment. He further added that such an appointment will add to the confidence of the American people.

The day that MacArthur's appointment, and successful flight to Australia was announced, the President in his press conference also had words of encouragement for the American people. He said that the purpose of the transfer was not to develop further defensive measures, but primarily, and definitely to "win the war." President Roosevelt said at that conference that he felt, too, that every American man and woman held the same admiration for the fighting, brilliant general that he held.

Roosevelt's Attitude on 'Unified Command' . . .
Sea Otters for Light
Shipping Not Yet in Production . . .
(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON. — The President takes seriously the fact that under the Constitution he is commander-in-chief of the army and navy. It may be for that reason that he does not take kindly to the notion of a department of national defense, to include army, navy and air force, as advocated by Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri and others.

The President's theory is that there is a "unified command" already, which is himself. Naturally he is fairly well satisfied with that, and considers the insertion of another executive between the present organizations and himself just the addition of that much unnecessary organization, with no resulting advantages to be had for the U. S.

There is much to be said for his position. But there is also something to be said against it, though there is nothing new on either side of the argument.

The sharpest objection lies in our own form of government. Conceivably a man might make a fine President in all other respects, but not be a military genius. It is not fashionable to belittle Abraham Lincoln, or even to hint that he was not the essence of perfection in every respect. However, the fact remains that as commander-in-chief of the armed forces of the Union he blundered around for practically the first three years of the war, trying one general after another until in Grant, Sherman and Sheridan he found the right prescription.

President: Military Strategist

But the President of the United States is elected for a fixed term. Nothing can be done no matter how inept he may prove himself as a director of military strategy. Indeed, it is most unlikely that his ABILITY as a strategist would be the issue even when he goes to the country, at the end of a four-year term, in the midst of a war.

Thus when Abraham Lincoln faced George B. McClellan in the 1864 election the main issue was not that McClellan, as a soldier, would make a better war President than Lincoln, as would have been a logical enough campaign talking-point, but whether the war should be continued at all.

The Pacifists of that day wanted to stop the war and have peace. As they proposed that McClellan, if elected, should make peace, naturally they did not bother much to stress his qualifications as a military leader for continuing the war.

On the President's side in the present controversy, it is unthinkable to have a war President who would not have the right to appoint whom he pleased as head of the "unified command" should there be one, just as he has the right and power now to name the secretaries of war and the navy and the generals and admirals who shall direct the high strategy. So the President would not be divested of responsibility.

Realizing which, the President prefers to operate without the added office of Unified Command.

Small Ships Would Release Larger Ones for War Work

Information as to what has happened to the Sea Otter is an experience as human as a man's liking to wear old clothes, or a woman wanting a new hat. It is the same type of thing which leads a city man, who has kept a few chickens in his back yard, to quit his job and start trying to make his living with a chicken farm.

Here was a very good idea for small craft, to supply a crying need for coastwise and short-distance water transportation, and which would release regular ships now in that sort of service for more important war work. So the naval designers get hold of it, and immediately begin to improve it. They saw how they could make the sea otters bigger, make them carry more. They began to think about using them in the transatlantic war supplies ferry service.

As a result the idea, very good for its original purposes, has gotten nowhere. Naturally, with the enlargement of the proposed ships, they drew more water. That made them, as the President pointed out, unavailable for the sort of ports for which they had originally been designed. Also, with the added notion of their crossing the Atlantic, or making similar long voyages, came the question of danger if sufficient supplies of gasoline were taken.

So we have no sea otters!

Torches Free Youth

Pinned by Elevator

BOSTON.—Firemen and police worked for 45 minutes with acetylene torches, pick-axes and chisels before freeing 19-year-old Thomas Corcoran, of North Cambridge, whose legs were pinned between a freight elevator cage and the first floor of a downtown building. Corcoran was a delivery boy.

Volumes Spoken In Blond's Wink

So Scholar Is Prompted to Write a Dictionary.

RALEIGH, N. C.—You're standing in a stag line on a dance floor. A beautiful blonde floats by, looks at you, winks, and quickly lowers her lashes.

That's right—you'd be a chump if you didn't cut in.

She's shouted at you in the sign language, brother—a language just as eloquent as the spoken word.

The sign language is now about to be dignified by a dictionary. It's being compiled by Dr. Francis C. Hayes of Guilford college, a 37-year-old scholar who maintains that gestures so often replace words that there ought to be a standard work on the subject.

Dr. Hayes' dictionary will contain all the gestures and all the signs he has collected during two years of study. The sign language of every country will be included—there'll be England's "V for victory"; the dictators' heel salutes; the African savage's inclination of the head, which means something darkly mysterious.

The college professor thinks there is just as much reason for a dictionary of gestures as for a dictionary of words.

For instance, he points out, a motion picture company once had to spend a pile of money to retake scenes containing a gesture which was comic to North Americans, but extremely objectionable to Latin Americans.

Delay Irks Sailor Who

Was Run Over by Train

NEW YORK.—Sailor Harrison Rush was run over by a subway train but that didn't keep him from his navy duty.

The sailor, 23 years old, en route from downtown Manhattan to the Brooklyn navy yard. He was late.

Down the steps he went—two and three at a time—slid a nickel into the slot and dashed into the Chambers street platform. No train. He leaned over the edge of the platform. He leaned some more—and toppled onto the tracks.

Just then out of the blackness roared a train. Brakes screeched. Women fainted. Men ran. Police and an ambulance doctor appeared.

Then out from a trough under the train, his uniform dirty, crawled Sailor Rush.

The doctor told Sailor Rush he had better go to a hospital.

"I'll be late," the sailor protested. Sailor Rush was late, but he got there.

Murder Decreases; Less Shooting, More Knifing

WASHINGTON.—Your chances of being murdered are going down—but they're still a lot higher than you may think, the census bureau says. Latest figures show that one out of every 173 deaths was classed as "homicide." Six years before, the odds were 116 to 1 against being murdered.

Methods of murder are changing, too. In 1934, 64 per cent of all murders were caused by firearms, and 18 per cent by cutting or piercing instruments. Six years later, 57 out of every 100 murders were by shooting, and 25 were committed with cutting or piercing instruments. During the six years, the number of murders annually fell from 12,055 to 8,208.

Speeder Gets 30 Days as Tire Saboteur in Chase

BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF.—Douglas N. Lamy, 23 years old, was charged with reckless driving. Highway Patrol Sergeant Seth Martin said he chased Lamy two miles at 80 miles an hour.

Commented Judge Cecil D. Holland:

"You are a tire saboteur. You are not only guilty of wearing out your own tires three to five times as fast as normal, because of excessive speed, but you are guilty of wearing out the tires of the highway patrol car that caught you."

"I sentence you to 30 days."

Brooklyn Happy to See Neighbors Go—Snakes

NEW YORK.—Three days after Pearl Harbor, it now becomes known, six Brooklynites were evacuated to Staten Island as a preparedness measure against a possible bombing.

Two and a half million other Brooklynites were glad to see them leave the Children's museum and go to the Staten Island zoo.

Who, they asked, wants two copperheads, a diamond-back rattler, a water moccasin and two Gila monsters—all poisonous—around during an air raid?

Diamond Dies

In the manufacturing of a diamond die, or an industrial diamond containing a minute hole through which fine wires are drawn to give them the proper size, the drilling of the hole is such a delicate operation that it may require 150 hours and cost seven times as much as the diamond itself.

Kidneys Must Work Well-

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling.

Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulates the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

DEEP WATER ISLAND

W-N-U-RELEASE

INSTALLMENT EIGHTEEN

THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Waterson, believing herself to be the heir to Alakoa, the island estate of her grandfather, finds herself no heiress at all, when the old gentleman, Garrett Waterson, turns up after a long disappearance. Meantime she and her lawyer have been engaged in a dispute over the rights to the property with the Wayne family who have been in possession since the old man left, many years before. Richard (Tonga Dick) Wayne has fallen in love with Karen, as has also the lawyer, John Colt. Karen and Dick quarrel and after she leaves Alakoa, with Colt, Dick overtakes them and forces their boat to return. Garrett Waterson has arrived and is very ill. Karen nurses him back to health, but she and Dick have never become reconciled since their quarrel. One day Karen's grandfather tells Dick that Karen is going back to Honolulu, possibly to marry Colt. Dick asks him what he thinks of that.

Now continue with the story.

Karen Waterson was waiting aboard the Holokai when Dick finally went aboard.

"No, sir—my personal belief is that it really cannot be done."

After that it was still necessary for Tonga Dick to explain to Charles Wong that he could not come to Honolulu yet—that he was going to Nuku Hiva. A good deal of expostulation attended that, but Wong could not persuade Tonga Dick to change his mind.

"This thing will be in probate a couple of years yet," Dick concluded. "Two or three weeks isn't going to make any difference."

After he had hung up the phone he sat for some time with his elbows on James Wayne's desk. It was very difficult for him to comprehend the full meaning of what had happened. He was convinced that no ability of his own had decided James Wayne; it must have been simply that no one could have known his brothers well without recognizing that they were futile and indecisive men.

It was strange to think that this desk where James Wayne had sat so many years was now his own; that he was supposed to sit there, and so manage James Wayne's conceptions of Alakoa that they should be brought to ultimate fruition. Plenty of exploitationists beside John Colt would be waiting to swallow Alakoa up if he should fail, and he did not believe that any of them could be expected to do well by Alakoa. It made him feel undersized, and unready; but he could not imagine failure—not in the long run.

Presently he took up the phone again, and began trying to reach various people in Honolulu—lawyers mostly. The Holokai was waiting, ready to sail, but she had to wait. Most of the day was gone before he had made sure that he really dared take the time to sail to Nuku Hiva, as he had promised Garrett Waterson to do.

Karen Waterson was waiting aboard the Holokai when Dick finally went aboard. His astonishment at finding her there was so complete that at first he did not know what to say to her.

"My grandfather tells me," Karen said, "that you are sailing almost any hour now."

"I have to go to Nuku Hiva for him."

"I know; I have learned quite a bit about island affairs while he's been sick. You'd be surprised how much I know about how things are done in the South Seas."

He still didn't know why she had come aboard the Holokai, but he didn't want to ask.

"Looks like good weather," he offered. "The Holokai ought to make good time."

"I hope you have a dandy trip."

"Thanks."

"But weren't you intending to touch at Honolulu, before you sail south?"

He started to tell her that he was not, but checked himself. "Why do you ask?"

"I was hoping you'd give me a lift. My grandfather will get along very nicely now, I think. Of course, he'd be glad to take me to Honolulu on the Sarah; but he ought not to go to sea for another ten days yet, and he simply won't go ashore. And I think—I would like to get away."

He knew that one of Alakoa's little cattle boats could give her passage to Honolulu in a day or two; but she didn't seem to know this, and he decided not to mention it.

"Of course I'll be glad to take you to Honolulu."

She smiled a little. "I knew you would. In fact, I even had my baggage put in the cabin."

That, too, somewhat surprised him, but he only said, "We'll weigh anchor soon."

"I think," Karen said, "I'll go below and take a nap, if you don't mind. There hasn't been an awful lot of sleep to be had aboard the Sarah."

When she had gone below and curled up on Dick's own bunk, Tonga Dick found that he was bitterly disappointed. He had supposed that the trip to Honolulu would give him a chance to talk to her again; but she might just as well have waited for the cattle boat, if she was going to sleep the voyage out.

By the time they were well out beyond the coral, Dick was trying to think of a plausible excuse for waking her up. He rigged a tray with a fish sandwich, a stalk of celery, a whisky soda, a glass of iced coffee, and a cup of tea, and carried it back to her bunk. Karen had to smile when he roused her to offer the silly assortment. It seemed to him that she looked astonishingly bright and fresh for someone so much in need of sleep.

"I didn't really think you'd want any of this junk," he admitted. "I want to talk to you, Karen."

"That's really a very attractive tray," Karen said. "I don't see how anyone could resist it. I think I would like a dry Martini."

"Go to thunder," said Tonga Dick. "Listen—I want to tell you something."

"Well?"

"You remember the night when I boarded the Seal, and made you come back to Alakoa?"

"Could I ever forget it? You were extremely pitiful, and unpleasant. I could have killed you."

"I didn't know then that you were running off to Honolulu to marry John Colt. But I was afraid you were. I didn't really think that it would do your precious grandfather any good to bring you back; I was pretty sure he wouldn't even recognize you. And I know it's none of my business who you marry. But sometimes when people do something in a hurry it turns out to be a mistake."

"Interference with other people's affairs is usually a mistake."

"That's not what I meant. I'm not sorry I turned the Seal. As it turned out, it actually did pull old Garrett Waterson through, I think."

"For heaven's sake, sit down," said Karen. "You make me nervous, swaying around like that."

Dick sat down on the edge of the bunk. "There's still plenty of time for you to marry John Colt."

"You may as well know," Karen said, "that I'm not going to marry John Colt."

"But you were going to, weren't you?"

"Yes; I was going to. I was hurt, and angry, and disgusted with the whole thing. I wanted to get away from Alakoa and everything about it. To marry John seemed a quick and complete escape. But I'm glad now that you turned the Seal."

He studied her carefully to see if she meant for him to draw encouragement from that, but decided that she did not. Karen seemed immensely detached.

"My grandfather thinks that he sent Colt back to Honolulu," Karen went on, "but he did not. I was the one who sent him back. The raid on Alakoa is over, Dick."

"I should imagine," Dick said ironically, "that you'll have another chance at it later. Garrett Waterson isn't going to live forever."

Karen flushed faintly. "I wish you wouldn't talk like that."

"When Garrett Waterson is dead," Dick pointed out, "your case will be as good as ever."

"I wouldn't be interested," Karen said. "I see things differently now. When John Colt first worked out our plan for claiming Alakoa, it seemed daring and romantic—very adventurous, and all that sort of silliness. But that was when Garrett Waterson was just a forgotten name. He's real now, and I know him, and I like him. And he is my own grandfather. I wouldn't be able now to try to discredit his name."

"That's the way you feel now. Two weeks ago you felt differently, and in two weeks more you'll probably feel differently again."

"I thought you might be afraid of that," Karen said. "But you don't need to be—not any more. I have a present for you, Dick."

She hunted around for her handbag, found it, and produced a piece of paper. "This is for you."

He unfolded the sheet and glanced at it. It was closely written in Karen's own hand; at the bottom was the huge scrawling signature of Garrett Waterson, witnessed by Stalquist and Karen Waterson herself.

CHRIST AND LIFE AFTER DEATH (EASTER)

LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:24-27; I Corinthians 15:50-58.

GOLDEN TEXT—But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.—I Corinthians 15:57.

V for Victory! By that sign have many peoples indicated their confidence in a victory to come. It is well to have a victorious outlook, but it is even better to be able to look back to victory already attained. That is just what we are able to do as we consider man's great and final enemy—death. That victory has been won on behalf of all who believe, by the risen Christ of whom we think in a special way on this Easter day.

He is the Lord of the living, not of the dead; those who, even though they may have left this world, have only laid aside the corruptible body for the incorruptible. They are victorious, even as we are, over death.

I. Living, Not Dead (Mark 12:24-27).

The Sadducees, a rationalistic sect of Christ's day, denied the resurrection, and so they were much distressed by His plain teaching of that truth. They therefore devised an intricate hypothetical case (see Mark 12:18-23) and sought to set a trap for Him. But they only caught themselves, for He pointed out to them and to the people that what was wrong with them was that they did not understand the Scriptures nor the power of God.

That is precisely what is wrong with the modernists of our day—they misinterpret God's Word, and they deny His power.

Then Jesus turned to them and in place of their fantastic "supposing" story He spoke of three real characters from the books of Moses which they taught. He said that God still calls Himself the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, because though they had long been in their graves, they were still alive. God's fellowship with His people is not merely for the brief life span of this earth, but for eternity. That fact, of course, carries with it the truth of the resurrection.

II. Incorruptible, Not Corruptible (I Cor. 15:50-54).

Man knows that his earthly body is marked for decay and death. That fact is written in its very members. He also knows that such a body would be entirely inappropriate for heaven—for eternity. Is he then barred from God's eternal kingdom? No, indeed, for there is to be a glorious change—the corruptible shall put on incorruptibility.

Whether we shall tarry until Jesus comes and be transformed without dying, or whether we shall await His coming for a time among those who sleep, there will come that trumpet sound, and in the twinkling of an eye we shall be clothed upon with incorruptible bodies like unto His glorious resurrection body (Phil. 3:21). There we have an assurance of victory already won on our behalf, which can and does strengthen our souls against the trials and sorrows of life.

III. Victorious, Not Defeated (I Cor. 15:55-58).

When Satan after a long struggle finally had Christ's body laid away in the tomb, he thought he had the victory, but just then came his great hour of defeat.

"Up from the grave He arose,
With a mighty triumph o'er His foes."

"Death could not hold its prey," for it sought to hold one stronger than itself—the Lord of Life Himself. He had broken the bonds of sin by His sacrifice on Calvary; and since it was sin (the violation of the law) which brought death in the first place (Gen. 2:17; 3:17-19), there was now a complete victory over both sin and death.

The one who knows Christ need no longer fear death. For him it is not a leap into the dark, or going as a trembling wayfarer into an unknown land. President John Quincy Adams was right when, aged and frail, he replied to a question as to his welfare: "Quite well, thank you. The house in which I live is tottering and trembling, and I may soon have to move out, but I am quite well." He was ready for the departure into a better land and a better body.

Such a hope has a splendid practical application, which Paul stresses in verse 58. With victorious assurance the believer stands steadfast and unmovable at the center of life, while always abounding in the joys and duties which come at its circumference. Like the wheel which can be useful only as its center is established and steady, so man can serve the Lord and enjoy a satisfying life only as he has the steadfastness of which Paul here speaks.

We trust that it is your possession by faith in Christ. If not, make it so on this resurrection Sunday!

Dear Friends:

I suppose I shouldn't say anything, but please don't call me Private Esposito any more. Privately speaking, I'm a Seaman, I'm a Sailor. Now there is a great deal of difference between a soldier and a sailor. The principal difference is this. Sailors are better. Then too we do more steel wooling of floors than the Army men do. We have to sleep in hammocks, and we have more girls. Oh nuts, I don't have to go any further to prove my point. Everyone knows we are the tops.

Your letter and the promise to send the Times to me was very well received. I have been a resident of Tinley Park but a few months and yet I feel the warmth and spontaneity behind your letters, and your gifts I assure you. Tinley Park will be given a real place in the Navy when my chance comes. I feel that I have something to fight for, when people I don't even know are willing to make sacrifices for me. For it is by sacrifices on the part of all that this war will be brought to a termination. Small infinitesimal ones will grow in size until they reach gargantuan proportions and will of their very nature crush the Japanese, and smash the Tainted cross of Nazidom, we here will do our part and sacrifices may be our lives, but we will do it. You must make your sacrifices too. You must pray for us. Keep things at home bright, and make each mother that has a son in the service feel that her Boy's task is just as important as General MacArthur. That's what we would like. We won't have to ask for this if you maintain yours behind the lines as you are. For you are now doing what is aiding us best, keeping our homes bright and cheery for us, so that when we return Life will be just as it was.

Pro-seum et Patria

Michael J. Esposito.

7 ways to save money on your home laundry

Even "old hands" at home laundry, with the most modern equipment, are now remembering ways of saving money that suddenly have become important.

Check up on your own laundry method—faithfully observe these seven points. Your expense will be less—and your laundry perhaps even whiter!

1 Few clothes need boiling.

Proper laundry methods will keep clothes white without boiling, thus saving the hidden costs in this extra step. Boil only baby clothes, handkerchiefs, and sickroom linens.

2 Learn exactly how much is a tubful.

Too many clothes slow down the water action and drag on the motor, too few clothes increase the number of tubfuls. A 7 to 12 minute washer run is usually long enough.

3 Watch the water level.

Water above the marked water level may strain the motor or overflow into the gears.

4 Always loosen wringer tension.

When wringer is not in use, tension should be released to avoid flat spots on rubber rollers.

5 Lubricate every 6 months.

Read direction sheet carefully, lubricate gears and motor at least twice a year.

6 Dampen clothes carefully.

An even distribution of moisture means faster ironing. Use bottle with perforated metal top, sprinkle with warm water (spreads more evenly).

7 Study fine fabrics.

Lengthen the life of your clothes by learning the special methods of laundering silks and woolsens. These facts can be obtained from our Home Service Department.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY of Northern Illinois

James E. Gorman, Late Head of R. I. Had Varied Career

James E. Gorman, president of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company for fifteen years, and trustee for that railroad since the property was placed under the jurisdiction of the Federal Court in 1933, died at 4:00 p.m. March 25 in St. Francis hospital in Evanston, Ill., where he had been confined for several weeks following an attack of influenza. He was 78 years old.

The death of Mr. Gorman brings to a close one of the most colorful careers in railroad annals. Mr. Gorman was held in high esteem in railway, industrial and banking circles throughout the nation and was accredited with knowing personally, not only thousands of employees on his railroad but also men of influence in every walk of life.

Funeral services were held from the Carroll chapel at Erie Street and Wabash Avenue to Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic church, Chicago, at 10:00 A.M. Saturday, March 28, with interment at Calvary cemetery.

Mr. Gorman was born in Chicago, December 3, 1863, the oldest boy in a family of eight children. Financial circumstances forced him to leave public school at the age of fourteen years, when he entered the employ of the Burlington Railroad as a yard clerk at fifteen dollars a month in the Chicago freight offices where his father also was employed. During the four years he remained with that railroad in a clerical capacity, he studied shorthand and in 1881 came to the Rock Island as stenographer and tariff clerk in the general freight offices. In 1885, Mr. Gorman went with the Northwestern Railway, in the same capacity, subsequently going to the Illinois Central and then the Burlington. In 1890, he accepted the position of Chief Clerk in the freight traffic department of the Santa Fe. In 1895, he was made Assistant General Freight Agent for the same road, promoted to General Freight Agent in 1898; to Assistant Freight Traffic Manager in 1904; Freight Traffic manager in 1905. Mr. Gorman's record on the Santa Fe had in the meantime attracted attention of the then management of the Rock Island Railroad and he was offered the position of First Vice-President, Traffic, with that company which he accepted in 1909. From 1915 to 1917 he held the position of Chief Executive Officer of the Rock Island, being chosen President in 1917, and serving as Federal Manager from 1918 to 1920 under Federal control during the World War. With the return of the railroads to private ownership in 1920, Mr. Gorman again assumed the duties of President of the Rock Island Lines. When the Rock Island, in 1933, went into trusteeship under the federal court, Mr. Gorman was chosen as one of the three trustees, retaining his position as corporate president, to which he was re-elected annually by the Board of Directors.

Mr. Gorman's innate Irish humor made him appreciative of a joke, even at his own expense. He told the story once of how he had long looked forward to seeing the famous Horseshoe Curve on the Pennsylvania Railroad near Altoona. He was then serving pro tem as secretary to the traffic head of the Santa Fe on a trip to New York City, and was told to take the business car of that official, attached to the rear of the train, back to Chicago. The opportunity he had waited for had at last come. He seated himself in the observation end of the car and waited for the train to reach the famous Curve. When he awoke, the Horseshoe Curve had been passed by several hours. Years afterward, he had the good fortune to see this interesting spot under more ideal circumstances.

A story which Mr. Gorman enjoyed telling concerned a similar trip thru the Middle West during a winter snow storm. His "boss" remarked that he was glad to see the snow and asked "Jim" if he knew why. Receiving a negative reply, the executive said:

"Well, this snow covers these wheat fields and is followed by other snows, and in the Spring the snow melts and

Paper would be gathered by members the first Saturday of the month and the people are asked to place it on their porches.

The meeting was then turned over to Geo. Sangemeister Jr., program chairman. A much enjoyed game of Pin the Tail on the Donkey was won by Allan Hedges. He received a puzzle map of the United States. Frank Folkers was farthest from perfect and received a souvenir. Allan Hedges told the fortunes which caused much laughter.

BARR Gets Things Done

RICHARD J. BARR'S record in public life is a RECORD OF ACCOMPLISHMENT. He has always had the ability to GET THINGS DONE.

As State Senator, BARR put through the legislation required to "pull Illinois out of the mud" and give this state—and this DISTRICT—the finest good roads in the entire nation. He also put through legislation that made possible the Commission

Form of government; the Workmen's Compensation Act; the Farmers Cattle Indemnity Act; the Teachers' Pension Act, and scores of other laws of DIRECT BENEFIT to business, farming, labor, policemen and firemen, women and children. BARR is given credit for the fact that Illinois has the finest employer and employee laws of any state in the Union. He is supported by such organizations as the Associated Employers of Illinois, and is endorsed by the Illinois Federation of Labor.

During the first World War, BARR served as President Pro Tempore of the State Senate under Governor Frank O. Lowden, and put through all of the legislation which made the war record of Illinois so outstanding. This experience is invaluable NOW. BARR has been and is a pillar of strength to Governor Green.

Things To Be Considered

Up to the present time we have abstained from any direct reference to politics, feeling that at times like the present our best service to the people would be lending our efforts and our newspaper in trying to win the war, but there are certain things that we feel that our people should consider. We have reference to Edward J. Barrett who is a candidate for the office of State Treasurer. No more loyal American ever wore a pair of horse hide shoes. He served with distinction in the last war and was gassed from which he suffered for a long term of years. He stands high in Legion circles; he is qualified in every way for the office and his past experience and his reputation has never been smirched by an unkind or unmanly act. Today if called, he would again do his duty to his country and to his fellow man. The primary will soon be with us again, and we believe that the people, regardless of party, will recognize the ability and loyalty of Edward J. Barrett, of Wilmette, Illinois. —Gillespie News, Independent Democratic.

RAIL FLAW DETECTOR

Be it known that this rail flaw detector has been invented:

One part is a short four-wheel truck with non-magnetic manganese steel wheels. Between the wheels on one side is a single D. C. electro-magnet with its two poles spaced along the rail. Each pole is six inches wide, extends two feet along the rail, and has a flat bottom spaced above the rail to provide a small air gap. Near the magnet winging, the air gap is a quarter inch, but it is less at the other end of the pole, so that the flux across the gap is uniform along the rail. The center of the magnet may be spring supported, but the pole pieces are carried by a rigid side frame to which the wheel bearings are fixed, for the magnet is strong enough to practically saturate the rail.

Another part, which may be omitted, is a demagnetizing A. C. electromagnet that follows the D. C. magnet and that may be similarly mounted on the same truck or on a following truck. The A. C. magnet is just strong enough to demagnetize the unhardened parts of the rail, leaving the hard faces of fatigue tracks still magnetized.

The last part is a detector similarly mounted on a truck ten feet or more behind the magnet trucks. The detector has a laminated permalloy core six inches long with five legs spaced evenly along its length and projecting down to a quarter inch from the top of the rail. Four coils are wound around the core in the four spaces between the legs, and the two center coils have twice as many turns as the two end coils. The four coils are connected in series, with the first and third coils in opposition to the other two. Voltage generated in the coils as the two or three trucks are moved along the rail is fed to a conventional amplifier and indicator. The ATLANTIS Co., 140 E. Huron St., Chicago.

America boasts not of her capacity to produce goods for destruction, but stands serene and confident in this hour of world chaos in the knowledge that should the proponents of barbarism force her to do so, mankind will be stunned at the incredible torrent of death-dealing instruments a peace-loving, tolerant, but aroused people can fashion to crush the foes of tolerance and liberty.

A LONG RECORD OF PUBLIC EFFICIENCY AND ECONOMY HENRY LAUTERBACH

CANDIDATE FOR NOMINATION IN THE REPUBLICAN PRIMARIES FOR THE OFFICE OF Sheriff OF WILL COUNTY

Here is a candidate of proven ability, integrity and good judgment, whose friends point with pride to a long period of service that marks him as an ideal type of man for voters to select for one of the most important offices in the county.

When Mr. Lauterbach took the office of Superintendent of the Will County Farm, he found a long time practice of a heavy appropriation of $4,000.00 per year for the maintenance and repairs of the Farm. From 1930 to 1939 Mr. Lauterbach has gradually reduced this appropriation, and for 1940 and 1941 the APPROPRIATION HAS BEEN ENTIRELY ELIMINATED, and the Farm is on a self-supporting basis.

In 1930, when Mr. Lauterbach took office, the cash on hand in the Will County Farm Fund amounted to $76.13. In the Farm report for 1941 the cash on hand and the accounts due totaled $8,433.26. For the past 12 yrs these reports have been recorded by Mr. Lauterbach.

In October, 1937, Mr. Lauterbach called a meeting of the Will County Board of Supervisors and with their cooperation the fee of $2.00 per week was increased to 40c per day against each township, county or other responsible source, for care of inmates at the Farm and also those who were taken to the hospital. Thru this 40c per day per inmate and the income from the Farm the following expenses were paid in 1941:

HIGH SCHOOL ROOM. The high school room was very much pleased with the new books given them by the Women's Athletic Association and the P.T.A. The freshmen are busy writing reports on Russia in geography.

MUSIC CLUB. The meeting was brought to order by the singing of our theme song, America. The possibility of buying pins was discussed. A committee was appointed by the president to suggest ways of earning money with which to buy the pins. For entertainment the members sang songs for a time after the meeting.

STUDENT COUNCIL. At the last meeting a report was given on the St. Patrick's party given by Jean Shevlin. An Easter party was planned for the intermediate room for next Friday to be given by the Student Council.

A total of $21.40 was taken in this week for the sale of Defense Stamps and ATHLETICS. The Mokena basket ball boys are going to have their pictures taken soon. Some of them are going to purchase white sweaters with their school letters on them. The reporter of the sport news for this year has been Elwin Schoeneck.

Arrange For Bus Service

The Community Center Foundation has made arrangements with the A.A. Charter Bus Company, to take care of any groups that need transportation so everyone can save their tires. Either the Foundation will make all the arrangements or you can deal directly with the company. Easter services will be held at the Foundation at 6:30 Sunday morning. Following the services, breakfast will be served to anyone who cares to come to the lodge. Reservations must be made in advance for the breakfast.

Saturday, April 11 at 8 p.m. the Young People's Group of the Foundation will hold another Barn Dance party at the Field House at Marquette Park. Young and old alike are invited to attend. At the last dance the ages ranged from 12 to 72 years of age. It is the kind of party that all can enjoy. If you don't know how to dance, you will by the time the evening is over. Come and enjoy yourself and also help the young people of the Thursday night discussion group of the Community Center Foundation complete the new building. Proceeds go to the building fund. So don't forget the date and place and we'll be seeing you at Marquette Park Field House.

Toasted Bunnies Parade for This Easter Dinner!
(See Recipes Below)

Easter Time

As gay as red tulips with food as fresh and appealing as spring itself is the Easter dinner menu I have planned for you today. It's simple and economical as is in keeping with the times, but with spring-like accents that lurk in the fragrant mint leaves, spring lamb, green peas, crisp, bright salad and in the distinctive ice cream.

With Easter on the wing, winter is definitely on the way out, and our thoughts naturally turn to lighter foods and delicate, pastel table settings. For Easter brings out your loveliest white cloths or pastel yellows. As flowers jonquils make an inexpensive but effective centerpiece. Or, for something more dramatic, try red tulips in the center of the bowl banked on all sides by white snapdragons.

Leg of Lamb Roast.
The paper thin covering or "fell" on your leg of lamb does not affect the flavoring of the cut and need not be removed until just before serving. In fact, when left on, it keeps the roast in better shape, cooks more quickly and keeps the juices well within the meat.

Mix $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon dry mustard, 3 tablespoons flour with $\frac{1}{2}$ cup cold water. Spread this over the leg of lamb. Roast uncovered in a moderately slow (325-degree) oven 30 to 35 minutes to the pound. Spread with currant jelly the last 20 minutes. Baste meat every 15 minutes.

Apricot Garnish.
Use canned halves of apricots or stewed halves, well chilled. Place a nugget of mint jelly in the center and serve around the leg of lamb roast.

A touch of red is a hard color to resist especially if it's in a crispy, zestful salad as this one:

Cranberry Apple Salad.
(Serves 6)
1 package lemon gelatin
1 cup boiling water
 $\frac{1}{2}$ of a pound can of cranberry sauce
1 apple
 $\frac{1}{2}$ orange
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Dissolve the gelatin in boiling water and chill until thickened. Crush cranberry sauce.

Lynn Says:

The Easter dinner I planned for you is economical but doubly so because you can make good use of the leftovers.

Cut the remainder of the roast off the bone, grind it with a fine grinder, $\frac{1}{2}$ onion, the potatoes and green peas. Place in a buttered dish, bake until heated. During the last seven minutes of baking break eggs whole on top of lamb mixture and serve as soon as eggs have cooked.

If you have just a little of the cranberry apple salad left, cut it into small cubes and serve as a relish. For salad, use leftover apricots from the roast garnish and fill the center with cream cheese and nuts and serve in lettuce cups with your favorite dressing.

If you have a few leftover green peas from dinner toss them together with a few carrots, shredded for a change. You can cream these, or mix them with a few bits of crumbled bacon. Far variation you might try a few tiny boiled onions with the leftover peas to make enough for a vegetable dish.

Rolls though leftover go over well even the next day. You can slice, toast and butter them. If you like them whole, simply put in a covered casserole with a few drops of water and allow a few minutes to heat through.

Dessert? This is easy. Spoon the ice cream on vanilla wafers, top with another wafer, more ice cream until all is used. Chill for an hour or so and serve sliced with a dab of whipped cream if desired.

Easter Dinner

Fruit Cup with Mint Leaves
*Leg of Lamb Roast with Apricot Garnish
*Creamed Potatoes Green Peas
*Cranberry Apple Salad
*Honey Rolls
*Almond Ice Cream with Toasted Bunnies
*Recipes Given

Grind apple and orange, leaving skins on. Combine cranberry sauce with fruits and lemon juice. Add to gelatin. Pour into molds and chill until firm, or pour into a refrigerator tray and cut in squares when ready to serve. Serve on crisp lettuce with creamy mayonnaise.

Crusty, fragrant honey rolls are a gracious addition to your Easter dinner. No need to worry about food shortages when excellent rolls such as this are minus sugar and only a small amount of fat and one egg. Rolled and cut to look like a swirl, these Honey rolls may be baked in buttered muffin tins, or may be shaped into cloverleaves. Have them hot or cold as you prefer, they're good both ways.

Honey Rolls.
1 cup milk
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup honey
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup fat
1 cake compressed yeast softened in $\frac{1}{4}$ cup lukewarm water
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoons salt
1 egg
4 cups flour

Scald milk, add fat and honey. Add yeast, salt and 2 cups flour. Then add beaten egg and remainder of flour to form a soft dough. Knead lightly until smooth. Let rise twice, then form into rolls. Let rise until light. Bake in a hot (400-degree) oven about 20 minutes.

Creamed Potatoes.
Method I. Peel new potatoes and wash thoroughly. Cook them in boiling water for 10 minutes. Add enough rich milk not quite enough to cover, and finish cooking potatoes. Be careful not to burn potatoes, stirring often, or cook in double boiler. Add salt, pepper and butter to taste.

Method II. Boil new potatoes in their jackets. Cool and peel. Melt 2 tablespoons butter, blend in 2 tablespoons flour, and add 1 cup of milk. Cook slowly, stirring constantly, until thick. Add potatoes to this, season, and heat through.

Easter dinner with the traditional leg o' lamb, peas and mint jelly touches demands a distinctive and at the same time a harmoniously flavored dessert. Almond flavoring is perfect foil, guaranteed to please, in this creamy, quickly prepared ice cream. No sugar required!

Almond Ice Cream.
(Serves 6)

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup sweetened condensed milk
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup water
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoons almond extract
1 cup whipping cream
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup finely shredded almonds

Mix sweetened condensed milk, water and almond flavoring. Chill. Whip cream to custard-like consistency and fold into chilled mixture. Freeze in a freezing unit until half frozen. Scrape from tray and beat until smooth but not melted. Add almonds. Replace in freezing unit until frozen.

For the Easter bunnies you may use day-old sliced white bread. Cut the bread with a bunny-shaped cookie cutter. Spread all sides of the cutouts with sweetened condensed milk, then roll in dry, shredded coconut, broken fine. Brown under broiler at low heat, watching very carefully, or toast over coals if you prefer by placing the bunnies on a fork. These taste like coconut frosted angel food.

THE WINNERS

The Kellys, the Lockards, the Caseys, the Andersons and the Lieutenant Coxes will win this war!

They and the other American kids, bred in the daredevil full-swinging, sock-it-out-the-park tradition...

The smash-that-line, block-that-kick, pickle-that-apple, drive-the-green, nail-him-on-the-beezer, clear-the-bases youngsters.

The boys too cocky, confident and courageous to doubt, quibble or hesitate...

The youngsters who have not lived long enough to lose an illusion, to figure the percentages or to question their own impulses.

The Tom Sawyers, the Peck's Bad Boys, the Slat McGonigles and the Kayo McGonigles...

The Yanks who are still young enough to believe Goliath was a pushover for David, that Jack the Giant Killer was under-written, and that Superman can be seen in any mirror...

The buckos who have had no dreams shattered, no hopes battered and no words destroyed...

The boys who, with two strikes on 'em, can say, "Here's where I pickle one, ya bum!"

The Butch O'Hares, the Joe Moores, the "Jake" Schwartzes and the Grant Mahoneys they will do the job.

The boys too full of high hopes and self-confidence to worry about costs...

The lads with pink cheeks and flashing eyes, ready for a fight or a frolic, able to sing before a rendezvous with death, able to look disaster in the face and give it the Bronx cheer.

The kids whose impulses are foreign to the conference room, the staff huddle, the parleys; and whose minds say "Lemme at 'em!" and never, "Suppose the plan goes wrong?"

They'll sew it up... the "Skin-nies," the "Reds," the "Spikes," the "Mickies" and the "Freckles" of the sandlots, farms and campuses, born and raised in the spirit of high competition, split-second reflexes, hair-raising exploits and hits-in-the-pitches.

The kids who have never learned to play safe...

The bimboes who swing from the floor, get up when they're groggy, put over the hay-maker, pole out the homer with the bases full, race the length of the grid for a touchdown, hole out with a brassie shot...

The boys who are too young to ask "Suppose this doesn't work out according to plan?" "It's a good idea but will it stand analysis?" or "What's in it for me?"

The youngsters who have never known the meaning of expediency.

They will finish this war...

The boys who rate many things above influence, prestige, cash, power and transportation by beach-wagon...

The kids who are not protecting a past, trimming sails to meet the present or worrying about the future...

The fellows who have never learned to compromise, haggle or defer...

The ones with all the flaming imagination of children, the supreme confidence of the kid pitcher, the hell-for-leather gusto of the boy socker who comes to bat in the ninth with the bases full and two down...

The kids who have never had to have their blood pressure taken and who think a fallen arch has something to do with Pompeii.

The youngsters who can never be imagined saying "Let's talk this over." "Hadn't we better wait for the breaks?" "Let's check and doublecheck before we do anything."

The boys who rate "Zowie!" "Pow!" and "Wham!" as the three most expressive words in any language.

HERO
I jumped into the icy lake
And dragged him in the boat.
No hero's bows I want to take—
I just had signed his note.
